

Join us for the 5th Annual New Trade Winds Storytelling Festival

Photography by John Robson

Storytellers from Alaska, Hawai'i, and Massachusetts explore cultural and cross-cultural relationships through intriguing and thought provoking performances. Watch and listen as whalers whose ship has been frozen in the ice gather together in an Iñupiat home, sharing their stories as they anticipate their journey home. The importance of gift giving and recognition of the host are two cultural protocols highlighted in this enthusiastic ensemble of song, dance, story, and celebratory homecomings.

Special free school performances

Wednesday, March 16

9:00 am, 11:00 am, 3:30 pm

Thursday, March 17

9:00 am, 11:00 am

All performances will be held at the Peabody Essex Museum, Salem, MA, and are suitable for grades 4 and higher. To register for a performance and free transportation, please contact School Services at (978) 745- 9500 ext. 3060. Please inquire about pairing this performance with another program during your visit. See echospace.org Special Features for curriculum suggestions.

A Whalers' Tale: The Adventure Continues

